'Defense delaying trial'

Mayweather confirms fight with Pacman

LOS ANGELES—Floyd Mayweather Jr. has spoken to Philippine news Manila by telephone to discuss a possible megafight next May, advising to each fight confirmed to several media outlets on Thursday.

Mayweather's adviser, Leonard White, confirmed the call to ESPN while Pacquiao promoter Bob Arum did the same to boxingnews.com and Pacquiao himself talked with ABS-CBN in the Philippines about the short-term contract.

The Philippine report quoted Pacquiao as saying there would be no problem if Mayweather would agree to a 50-50 split of income from what is expected to be the richest fight in boxing history—an event at $100 million—if it ever comes off.

Under US law, Mayweather and Pacquiao, regarded as the world's top pound-for-pound fighters, nearly made a deal for a fight once before but the American's insistence on wider sweeping blood tests helped kill the talks.

CRASH FIGHT The much-awaited battle featuring the world's best pound-for-pound boxing champions Manny Pacquiao and Floyd Mayweather Jr. appears to be a certainty this year. The fight could take place sometime in May and would likely generate one of the biggest purses and television audiences in boxing history.

Prosecutors' attempt to present evidence blocked at every step

By Cathy C. Yamasan and TJ Burgeles

SEN. PANFILO LACSON is unhappy with the numerous objections lodged by the defense at Chief Justice Renato Corona's impeachment trial and considers these a deterrent to swift justice.

He said he would officially respond to his fellow senators' judges his observation that the proceedings were being "constantly bogged down by as many objections on the floor that accomplish nothing except a delay in the trial."

Lacson said that after seeing the defense block the prosecution's attempts to present evidence every step of the way, the proceedings so far had made him "understand why it is impossible for justice to be re-stated swiftly and fairly."

He said his experience as a law enforcement official had made him familiar with court processes, especially criminal litigation.

Luisita farmers bracing for arrest

TARLAC CITY—Farmers who occupied land inside Hacienda Luisita that is now owned by a bank are bracing for arrest as they refuse to leave the property and registered defiance by serving their version of an eviction notice against the bank and the Cagayan, relatives of President Aquino who owned the 6,000-hectare sugar estate.

Insisting that the land belonged to them and was in the Rural Commercial Bank Corp. (RCBC) that came to own it, farmers have included a injunction from the 144-hectare plot of property owned RCBC and the Cagayan to leave.

The farmers said the symbolic protest after the Tarlac provincial office issued a resolution saying there was no basis to change the farmers with given ownership and illegal occupation of property. The resolution came from the office of Luis Cagayan, national Tarlac governor.

RCBC, which bought the land from the firm that manages the hacienda, said the farmers had no right.

The Supreme Court, in a decision that ordered the distribution of land to the hacienda occupants, said the Tarlac provincial government had no authority to change the farmers' status.

The property owners RCBC in Nov. 25, 2004 through farm classes after the Luisita Industrial Property Corp. (LICP) failed to pay its loan. The property was sold for P14.5 million.

In July 2011, the farmers occupied the land, which is placed in the name of Luisita, and other portions of it. RCBC used 23 hectares to build the corporation.

Charges vs Sotto, car buyer dropped

'Repetition of initial complaints'

By Julia M. Aurelio

THE QUEZON City Prosecutor's Office has affirmed its ruling jacking the estate charges Sen. Vicente Sotto III filed against a buyer of his luxury car, as well as the countercharges the senator filed against him.

City prosecutor Danilo Lee denied the appeal of both the senator and that of Eric Roque Singsap, saying he was not convinced with their arguments.

Lee said the evidence the reconsideration of the two parties were mere repetition of their initial complaints against each other.

"We had nothing there that would warrant the reconsideration, let alone the reversal of our earlier findings," part of the ruling read.

The reconsideration was filed Sept. 6, 2011, but was only released to media this month.

The legal battle stemmed from an estate sale from a car against Singsap, who wanted to buy the senator's BMW in 2010.

Alapques countered by filing petition and filed charges against the senator, who reportedly made libelous statements against him in a radio interview.

In August last year, National City Prosecutor for District Region charged Sotto of the same charges.

He also dismissed the estate charges lodged against Alapques despite the best attempts to file to attend a preliminary investigation.

This led both parties to file separate motions for reconsideration, arguing that they were not finding probable cause in the charges they filed against each other. In both arguing that the motion, although worded differently, are basically of the parties' allegations in their respective pleadings," the city prosecutor said.

Lee affirmed Baylos's findings that Sotto could not have committed libel in covering statements pertaining to Singsap in a magazine show, as the latter failed to prove malice in the statements.

The city prosecutor also agreed with Baylos that there was no credit concerned by Alapques, given the factual circumstances of the case.

Shoot-to-kill order issued for cop in Binondo robbery

By Jeannette L. Andrade

A SHOOT-TO-KILL order has been issued against a policeman charged with robbing a robbery bar week where a Chinese man, an wife killed and two of her kids were wounded.

The order was issued by Manila Mayor Alfredo Eusebio to one P/O Ernesto Biazang Jr., who has been tagged as "armed and dangerous," would resist arrest. Biazang, who has only three in the service for two years and was assigned at the National Capital Region Police Office Regional Police Station, is a cousin of former NCR Assistant police station commander precinct commander Insp. Joseph Biazang.

Ernesto Biazang and three other men were identified as the motorcycle-riding robbers who allegedly tried to rob businessman Fred Hui in Binondo on Jan. 11.

Hui was shot dead, while his pregnant wife, Hui's mother, and two of her kids were wounded when they were shot to kill.

The policeman was identified after he was seen in a closed circuit television camera footage of the group's flight from the crime scene.

He is also a suspect in the robbery in the Binondo family's cousin who made and retail store in November last year.

"We are making him to surrender as promised by his mother, but he has not returned since," Biazang's lawyer said in a press conference yesterday.

Order states that have failed to do different areas looking for the suspect could Biazang had not been going home and no longer reports for duty.

Apert from Biazang, five included his three alleged cohorts in his "shoot-to-kill order," in case of several witnesses.

Two of them remain unidentified while the other was identified only through his alias "Mac."

Teenage first responders come to the rescue in distressed QC communities

By Julia H. Auerio

MAREL Joyce and Samer make whatever the results from the one-day training a must when they see a distressed teen in need. The 13-year-old student of North Parkview High School knew that getting into out of the profession was a challenge, even though she was already a trained police officer. Although she knew what to do, Samer said the hardest about coming to his house.

"I asked my father to call the police station to see how they could help me," she said. "I would be too disappointed. If we all, they say not to come to a kid like this," she said.

Samers was arrested on the scene and held the state.

Same is just one of 2,541 students who underwent a training for police officers given to students of Quebec City's public schools.

A group of the city government's Department of Public Order and Safety (DPO), the teenagers' parents and other community members who were taught how to give first aid and respond to emergencies such as earthquakes, fires and floods, were trained for their first position to emergency call it, their community.

It's better to be prepared than to be caught off-guard. During the floods brought by Tropical Storm "Ondine" in 2009, DPO-led first responders helped the community manage the disaster.

They can become first responders instead of waiting for someone to come to them," he said.

The idea of training police responders and their counterparts among teenagers came about in the aftermath of 9/11, when floods and earthquakes were common in Quebec City without warning.

DPO's training was made to respond to calls for help from teenagers. In 2009, only a few teenagers were trained in Quebec City.

In late 2011, the city government pushed through with its plan to train students in basic first aid and disaster response skills. "They are the first ones on the scene because they are students of these communities themselves."

TEENAGE FIRST RESPONDERS

They can become first responders instead of waiting for someone to come to them," he said.

The idea of training police responders and their counterparts among teenagers came about in the aftermath of 9/11, when floods and earthquakes were common in Quebec City without warning.

DPO's training was made to respond to calls for help from teenagers. In 2009, only a few teenagers were trained in Quebec City.

In late 2011, the city government pushed through with its plan to train students in basic first aid and disaster response skills. "They are the first ones on the scene because they are students of these communities themselves."

Maria Anna Marocco, Samer's classmate, said learning how to do first aid, emergency medical training, and even the right way to come to help when the need arises.

Samers, in her past, expressed willingness not just to act as a person, but to help someone in a disaster as well.

"In a young age, we can be of service if a community arises. And we can help our knowledge as a disaster hit," she said.

Billboard dismantling stopped I don't gloat over somebody's misfortune

By Mike Mendon

A QUEBEC City judge has issued an injunction against the Metropolitan Radio Co. (MRC) stopping the agency from dismantling a billboard in Quebec City.

The MRC's Jean-François Lefebvre questioned the order which included all 119 billboards owned by the company, saying their initial position cannot only be held from the company but also in Quebec City. "We will exhaust all legal means to ensure the billboards continue to exist and stand as a sign of the city and a source of income for us as we strive to protect the restoration," Lefebvre said.

He added that he was contemplating whether to bring administrative charges against Judge-Justice Claude Lévesque of the court of the injunction to all billboards owned by the company. The Quebec City judge, dated Dec. 12, issued an order to the company to stop dismantling the billboards for now while the MRC's lawsuit is ongoing.

The MRC's legal counsel, Isabelle Gosselin, said the agency's website was based on an order by the Quebec City government's building official to tear down the billboard after learning it did not have a building permit.

"MRC is not to be responsible for the billboard being dismantled," said a spokesman for the company. "We are not responsible for the billboard being dismantled."

The company has been in court since 2009.

Foreign investors unaffected by Senate trial, say experts

But PH real estate index may be affected

Text and photos by Ross E. Solares

Special to Inquirer

FIRST GOOD news: Manila has just been upgraded in commercial investments prospects this year. Second good news: International property investors are not at all bothered by the ongoing impeachment trial proceedings in the Senate.

In an exclusive Web interview with Urban Land Institute Inc. and South Asia chair Simon Brown in the office of USI Philippines founding chair Carlos Rullon on Dec. 19, 2011, he stated that he was aware of the shenanigans between Malacañang and the Supreme Court Chief Justice. He stated that this political issue would not affect the prospects of foreign property investors.

"In majority of countries, I think people look at these headlines every day they look beyond that and people such as investors as well as those companies are interested in the Philippines business."

Lawrence Brown reported last week that the Philippines has been an increasingly important destination for property investments. Manila was upgraded in commercial investment prospects by two units in the Emerging Stavits in Asia Pacific 2012 (a real estate firm not jointly published by the Urban Land Institute and UrbanWorldhouse Company).

Manila's improvement—from the 2008 to 19th for this year—was largely due to the expected continued growth in the government's public works program.

A new government and a surge in foreign investment in the business process outsourcing market—both office and call centers, for the most part—have helped the commercial real estate market, boosting the city's 2012 investment prospects, the report stated.

Among 21 include in the Asia Pacific, the Emerging Trends ranking is based on the opinion of more than 300 independent members of internationally renowned real estate practitioners, including investors, developers, property company representatives, lenders, brokers and consultants.

Included in the 32-page report, however, has been the six-place slide of Manila in terms of development, falling to 17th in overall.

Lawrence Brown's asked how property analysts then view take on the possible implications of the ongoing Senate impeachment trial.

Stavits, however, a professor at the Hines Graduate School of Business and senior adviser at Wharton Business Advisory, said that generally, the impeachment pro-

Year of the 'Dragon'

David Fincher's take on the best-selling novel 'The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo' is disturbing, dark and mesmerizing

By Noel S. De Vesa

WATCHING director David Fincher's "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo" for the first time is quite similar to getting your first piercing. You go willingly, then are shocked by the violence of the act, before the residual pain leaves you transfixed by a sense of lingering beauty—as well as an additional hole somewhere in your body.

For two and a half hours, Fincher explores some pretty disturbing places in the human psyche with his dark, sharp exploration of the late Hans Larsson's 2005, instantly best-selling duology of the same title. If ever there was a property that was meant for Fincher, it's this one. The movie's cold, dispassionate and gripping narrative, set in an alternate version of Sweden's "Immigrant Song," is a pretty good indicator of the depths Fincher is willing to go to. This subtle hole is lined with healthy flesh, and Allen is picking a tear.

After very publicly losing a bid, now, disgraced book-buff, journalist, Michael Blomqvist (Daniel Craig) is rescued from his misadventure by a mysterious phone call, brought to the attention of Henrik (Liam Neeson), a former associate of Larsson's. Blomqvist is offered a job by the publisher, Henrik Vanger (Christopher Plummer): A lot of money and recognition in exchange for solving the 40-year-old disappearance of Henrik's beloved sister Harriet.

In order to do so, Blomqvist will have to take a very long look at Harriet's most likely "best girl" friend, Lisbeth Salander (Rooney Mara), an enigmatic, pierced, and almost gothic beauty with a mysterious past for the world to know. But also an enigmatic, gritty, and gritty woman. There is nothing about her that is not a danger to the world.

DANIEL CRAIG as Michael Blomqvist

Book devotion with Blomqvist and the finger assignment. "Rage, terror, fear, hatred, religion," Blomqvist says. "It's a very simple story."

While he was nominated for an Academy Award for 2010's "The Social Network," Fincher's body of work is populated by more difficult tales, such as the raw nerve of "Se7en" and the hallucinogenic "Fight Club." "Dragon" is perfect for him, as he works up a mesmerizing story of love and hate, passion and obsession with the original book's author and his now with the director of "The Social Network."

Fincher's script condenses Larsson's dense, delicious novel into a more accessible, more straightforward whodunit. Some of the best lines of the book will surface more prominently in the original plot. The changes, some subtle, some more dramatic, are in the center of Fincher's creative approach. "It's not that it's broken," Blomqvist is quoted by a book, "it's broken that's the most beautiful thing in the world." Blomqvist's story is accompanied by a beautiful, digital score from "The Social Network" collaborator Trent Reznor and Atticus Ross.

Jackie Rice: 'Appearances can be deceiving'

By Rita F. Auld

WITH HER glowing media looks and piercing eyes, Jackie Rice looks tougher than she really is. Her recent chat with the grand winner of "Survivor: Tocantins" revealed a side of her the public knows little about.

Jackie shares, "Appearances can be deceiving. People think I'm tough. They think I'm scary. But, really, I'm just the way I look. One day, I got hurt really bad. I got hit in the face. You'll realize how sensitive I am."

Talent search

The 31-year-old 5'6" Aussie beauty says that, shortly after winning the top place of the paper's talent search, people began saying troubling things about her. She recalls, "I'll wake up one day and read in the papers how mean I was. The editors got so fed up that even my parents started believing that I was a bad girl."

Jackie mentioned on "Survivor" that she's a "tough girl." In her own words, however, it was her laughing matter for her. "I would say my eyes out, then I would say, 'I'm just a girl.' I developed a persona for press once—take no shit, don't let the press, because you didn't know what she was like."

How did she deal with it? She admits, "I realized that it was something I had to get past. Then, The Daily [Franklin] gave me good advice. Don't read the paper—and, it worked! They didn't do it to me, but they started to."

Disposition

With a canny disposition and a thicker skin, Jackie says she's ready to face more challenges—on-camera and off. She shares her "Bubbly Girl," "Smiley Girl," and "Smiley Girl," she's learned to be more relaxed, and less impressionable—which helped her immensely when she topped the "Survivor" "Smiley."

Then, Jackie is no longer so shy as she used to be. After one chat, when she was asked to sing, the pretty actress quickly agreed—and she graciously worked the crowd.

Insufficient 'emotional capital'
